

Construction to start at Lynnwood Costco

Work on the Seattle area's newest Costco Wholesale warehouse will start Wednesday, according to the real estate development company in charge of the project.

The Puget Sound area's newest Costco Wholesale warehouse will start being erected in Lynnwood on Wednesday, according to the real estate development company in charge of the project.

Dallas-based Cypress Equities said Tuesday it will kick off construction of the 150,000-square-foot Costco, to be located at 3001 184th Street SW in Lynnwood, the former site of Lynnwood High School, located north of Alderwood Mall.

The site is being redeveloped as a mixed-use retail center dubbed "Lynnwood Place." Costco will serve as the project's anchor.

The Lynnwood warehouse would be the 15th within 30 miles of Seattle, including two so-called Business Centers, which cater to small businesses, located in Lynnwood and in Fife, respectively. The company currently has 29 locations in Washington state.
